'We are called to be a welcoming caring faith community who bring people to Jesus who sends us out with Good News for all'.

God makes all things new – The Sunday Gospel by Fr Silvester O’Flynn OFM Cap. The Irish Catholic

Walking with the Spirit - Let us draw hope and strength from the Mass readings of this Sunday Paul and Barnabas put fresh heart into people, encouraging them to persevere in the Faith. The visionary who wrote the Book of Revelation saw the holy city, and the New Jerusalem coming down from God out of heaven. In this mystical city God sets up home and is known as God-is-with-them. “Now I am making the whole of creation new”.

The Gospel is a reminder that the supernatural grace of the Holy Spirit can transform people into Spirit-filled missionaries inspiring people into a kingdom of love, truth, justice and peace. The greatest proof of the resurrection is not the fact that the tomb of Jesus was empty but the transformation of the Christian community into a new way of thinking, acting, forgiving, sharing, caring, making peace and praying. No room here for mediocrity or minimalism. “By this love you have for one another, everyone will know that you are my disciples.”

Prayer

O God, you can make all things new.

The prophet Ezekiel promised that you would remove our hearts of stone and put a new spirit within us.

As we look forward to Pentecost, we pray that you will remove the hardness of heart which refuses to forgive: the mediocrity which settles for the bare minimum: and the selfishness which fails to care and share.

Send forth your Spirit to renew the face of the earth.
Enkindle within us the fire of your love.

'In difficult times, carry something beautiful in your heart' Blasie Pascal
